What People Say

Mrs. C. A. Decker, editor of THE METHODIST WOMAN:

"The Periodical Key arrived on my desk the other day. It is terrific! And that applies to several aspects: the idea, the design, the coverage, the possibilities, the work involved."

I. Martin Bailey, director of circulation for THE METHODIST PERIODICAL OF CHRISTIAN EDUCATION:

"I want to congratulate you on what I consider to be an important tool of Christian education, because it is in these publications that they can be used effectively in both formal and informal teaching that they are able to contribute to the success of our educational program."

A theological school librarian:

"Thank you for including us, such indexes are sorely needed."

A Christian education director:

"Both our pastor and I feel that this is something that will be very useful to us, as well as to all of the people of our church. I have many times wished for such an index and am happy to know that someone has taken the task of compiling it."

A librarian (obviously not a Methodist):

"It makes me realize I'm missing something not to know your fine Methodist periodicals."

OUR BEGINNINGS

Several years ago in a Sunday school class the teacher suggested that "In the beginning . . . " had more significance to the Christian than mere reference to the origin of the world or even the universe, but that it meant God must be in the beginning of everything we do. Certainly for one small Methodist with limited experience and even more limited finances, living in a compact student housing project with her husband, a 5-year-old girl and a 3-year-old boy to undertake a project of the immensity of THE PERIODICAL KEY would seem to be utterly foolhardy.

Seem to be? It would be, except for one thing—the assurance that God was guiding.

The very first idea was born of the frustration of a busy Methodist woman who could not possibly read all the periodicals in which she knew there was helpful material for her particular church responsibilities. A reader's guide to Methodist magazines would surely answer the problem. She believed it was a good enough idea that one day when she had time she would write to someone on the Board of Education in Nashville and suggest it.

But, the second thought in "the KEY chain" came months later, in different surroundings, and with such startling suddenness it was as though it came through her mind, not from it—"You could do that!" It was true that she had spent a childhood in the parsonage of one of the best ministers from whom to learn Methodism and she had a background which combined experience as a file clerk, a librarian and a religious education worker. These were ingredients which would help.

Then began a period of testing the idea and developing it through study of other indexing projects and conversation with many Methodists from all parts of the country in which needs of various church workers were analyzed to see how best the index would answer the needs of each one. Investigation of printing methods and costs, obtaining financial backing, getting all the magazines to be indexed, planning some publicity of the project and deciding just what method should be used to introduce it to Methodists—all these problems took a good many hours for solution.

All the way through these planning stages, ideas occurred again and again in this same manner, as though coming through rather than from her. Obstacles of all sorts reared their ugly heads yet in the midst of the most hopeless feeling, even while marveling at it herself, this Methodist woman kept right on plugging toward the goal, wondering why she didn't give up.

When help was needed along the way someone was always there to answer the need—for suggestions, for financial support, for a baby sitter during stages of the project which necessitated being away, for free labor in getting out that first great mailing of 5,000 free copies. Countless times when progress seemed to be permanently stopped, the situation was saved by an interested and creatively thoughtful husband.

And now THE PERIODICAL KEY is a reality. The test of its value will be in the number of subscribers it attracts and in the subscribers' reactions. If it serves its users well a dream has been realized.

You Can Use The Periodical Key!

We are certain you can because we know you are busy and we know you are active. You may want to subscribe for yourself or see that your church library provides one which you and other church members may use. Whatever way you find of making one available for yourself, be sure to look at the advantages below of Charter Subscriptions.
